Q.48 Sometimes there are many elections on one ballot, such as elections for president, governor, Senate, Congress, and state and local offices. Some people go into the voting booth and just vote for president. Other people vote for every office, like Senator, governor, Congress and state legislature. Here are some reasons why people vote in all the offices on the ballot, not just for president, but for offices like Senator, and Congress as well. For each one, please tell me whether you strongly agree, somewhat agree, somewhat disagree or strongly disagree.
